IFLA Rare Books and Special Collections Section events at WLIC 2019

The Rare Books and Special Collections Section invites you to join our programme of events during the Congress in Athens, 24-30 August 2019.

Full details of each session are posted on the Congress website but this post gives a short summary.

Get involved!

If you are interested in the Rare Books and Special Collections section, and in the issues involved in working with rare books and special collections of any kind, please come and speak to us at the Congress. You are invited to attend our programme sessions and the sessions we have been involved with, to attend either or both of our Section Business Meetings, and to talk to members of the RBSC Standing Committee during the Congress.

The RBSC co-organises and sponsors conferences and seminars outside the WLIC. Please do take the opportunity during the Congress to discuss any such events, or the hosting of future satellite or mid-term Section meetings, with us. If you can't join us in Athens and are interested in any of these topics, please get in touch – we will be posting the names of our new Section Officers after the conference, but in the meantime you can contact our current Chair Helen Vincent; Secretary Danielle Culpepper; Information Officer Remi Mathis or any other committee member.

- Sesja dyskusyjna - krótkie prezentacje (maks. 10 minut) i dyskusje w grupach na poszczególne tematy
- Różnorodna tematyka: dwie prezentacje na temat OA, jedna na temat rewolucji technologicznej w bibliotekach akademickich Afryki i jedna na temat roli bibliotek naukowych w ekosystemie badawczo-edukacyjnym
- Możliwość uczestniczenia w więcej niż jednej dyskusji

About Plan S

Plan S is an initiative for Open Access publishing that was launched in September 2018. The plan is supported by cOAlition S, an international consortium of research funders. Plan S requires that, from 2021, scientific publications that result from research funded by public grants must be published in compliant Open Access journals or platforms.

REACTIONS ON PLAN S

1. Plan S may or may not contribute to a more fundamental remake of scholarly communication
2. The fact that Plan S is not yet embraced worldwide remains a problem.
3. Little attention for the different publication cultures within the various scientific domains
4. A country complying with Plan S could become less attractive for researchers; Researchers will move to countries where plan S is not an issue
5. Effects on careers still unclear
6. Lack of clarity on the consequences of changing funding models
7. Potential loss of high-quality review procedures due to new business model
8. Researchers will be forced to publish their important research in insignificant journals.
9. The new European Plan S – an open access (OA) policy for research results – is ambitious and radical.
10. This is not only a bad way of disseminating research, it will also have a widespread negative impact on recruitment to, and the internationalization of, the best research projects.

Will the world embrace Plan S, the radical proposal to mandate open access to science papers?

By Tania Rabesandratana | Jan. 3, 2019 , 2:00 PM

How far will Plan S spread?

Since the September 2018 launch of the Europe-backed program to mandate immediate open access (OA) to scientific literature, 16 funders in 13 countries have signed on. That's still far shy of Plan S's ambition: to convince the world's major research funders to require immediate OA to all published papers stemming from their grants. Whether it will reach that goal depends in part on details that remain to be settled, including a cap on the author charges that funders will pay for OA publication. But the plan has gained momentum: In December 2018, China stunned many by expressing strong support for Plan S. This month, a national funding agency in Africa is expected to join, possibly followed by a second U.S. funder. Others around the world are considering whether
